22. Describe the general nature of your current practice including any certifications which you possess; additionally, if your practice is substantially different from your prior practice or if you are not now practicing law, give details of prior practice. Describe your typical clients or former clients and the problems for which they sought your services.

Initially, my practice of law began as an intern with the Polk County Public Defender's office. I worked as an intern in the juvenile division. Upon graduation and awaiting to be sworn, I was able to return back to the public defender's office and handled a full caseload of traffic and misdemeanor cases. Following that, in 1984 I went to practice with my late brother, John D. Kaylor, and initially continued to handle criminal, divorce, social security disability, workers' compensation and some of the civil personal injury trial work. Within about 18 months, I stopped doing criminal and divorce work. The social security disability practice was referred out for many years and the practice focused on personal injury, wrongful death and workers' compensation.

The area of civil litigation over the last twenty years has been limited to motor vehicle negligence, select medical malpractice and nursing home cases, premises liability and product liability with co-counsel associated. I have handled a caseload that would average anywhere from 125 to 250 cases per year.

In 1995, my late brother, because of health reasons, retired, and I hired Nora Leto as an associate and is now a partner in the firm.

The firm's main office for the last twenty-five years has been in Winter Haven with a staff of approximately five employees. In addition, an office in Sebring was opened approximately twenty-five years ago with one, or two staff members depending on overall demand. I have been in Sebring, Florida in that office one or two days a week since the opening of the office.

Recently, a Lakeland office and a second Winter Haven office was opened in expansion of the social security disability practice of which my law partner mostly handles. Those offices, likewise have staff members present on a full-time basis.

All of our offices are networked and utilize the most up to date legal management software and accounting programs. In the last few years, federal practice has gone completely electronic (e-filing). The same holds true with workers' compensation proceedings. The office staff is now trained for civil court e-filing.

In addition to my caseload as a trial attorney, I have handled all administrative matters concerning the day to day operations of a practice which involves two lawyers, seven employees, four offices and overhead expenses which exceed $1,000,000 annually.

The clients that I have represented come from all walks of life. On the civil litigation side, these individuals range from children, college students, nurses, doctors, insurance adjusters, school teachers and pretty much the entire demographic spectrum of the 10th Circuit. The workers' compensation practice tends to be a little more reflective of middle to lower socio-economic strata involving farm workers, manufacturing workers, construction workers and health care providers. On some occasions I have represented uninsured employers. I likewise try approximately 30 per year select social security disability cases.

In sum, I have had the experience of representing a large cross section of the demographics within the 10th judicial circuit with an ability to effectively counsel, explain the law, and help clients make decisions that are in their best interest.

Joe Pugh v Mark Kaylor

10th Judicial Circuit, Polk County

Case No.: 93-6069

Division R

I testified against my client, Joe Pugh. He sought to set aside a settlement. I refused to offer him testimony or legal assistance and was subsequently called to testify ultimately against him. As a result, he lost the proceedings, threatened my life, filed a Bar grievance and sued me. This took place during 1993 and 1994. The grievance and lawsuit both being dismissed.

36b. Has any lawsuit to your knowledge been filed alleging malpractice as a result of action or inaction on your part?

No

36c. Have you or your professional liability insurance carrier ever settled a claim against you for professional malpractice? If so, give particulars, including the amounts involved.

a) Janet & Garry Jones

The clients, Janet and Garry Jones, retained me in 6/03. Their claim was for injuries Ms. Jones sustained in a motor vehicle accident in 4/01. She sought my services as a result of being put on notice that the at-fault insurance company was in bankruptcy. We proceeded with representing the clients and we were on notice of the FIGA timeliness. More importantly, Florida Statute 631.68 triggers a one year statute of limitations, but unfortunately, due to clerical error, it was not calendared appropriately. The liability claim which FIGA was adjusting had limits of insurance in the amount of $10,000. There had been an offer of $3,500. The client received a chip avulsion fracture to her hand which resulted in a minor impairment with some arthritic problems. The clients also had uninsured motorist coverage but at the time that I last saw them, they did not want to bring an uninsured motorist claim against their own insurance company.

The matter was properly reported by me to my professional liability insurance carrier (early reporting) immediately upon realizing that the error had occurred. Furthermore, I contacted the Florida Bar to confirm that I had acted in an ethical manner in the protection of my client from the clerical incident.

The matter was resolved amicably without litigation.

b) Timothy Reddick

Laura Reddick was injured in 1/05 in a motor vehicle accident. She was struck from behind by a school bus. Her husband, Timothy Reddick, was not in the vehicle. In 10/07, pursuant to sovereign immunity Florida Law, a Notice of Intent was sent to the proper authorities. Following failed settlement negotiations I reviewed the file for the purpose of filing suit. It was at that time that I discovered that the husband, Timothy Reddick, had not been named as a claimant and failed to include his loss of consortium claim. It was an oversight and not an intentional error.

I immediately alerted my liability professional insurance carrier and withdrew as attorney of record after providing the clients with a copy of their entire file.

Mr. Reddick's claim was resolved amicably for $10,000 without litigation.
